

Dear Longdendale park rangers,

I am writing to thank you for letting us come and visit. As well as setting up the awesome activities. My friends and I had a very interesting day taking part in all the activities that you provided.

My favourite part of the day was finding the code, although I found it a bit too easy. I also enjoyed the hare hunt, but again the discs were a bit too easy to find.

We learned a lot about climate change and how it affects animals' homes and habitats. We also learnt how to reduce our carbon footprints (how much carbon dioxide I release into the air). Actions such as catching the bus instead of using the car (because one full double decker bus takes around 75 cars off the road) and walking where possible to reduce air pollution.

Yours sincerely
