

Everything you need to know about a Cloud Goblin (Nubes Cobalus)

Cloud Goblins (Nubes Cobalus) are peculiar but gentle creatures who have an excellent sense of humour. They are delightful and pleasant creatures who share joy to all.

Appearance

Have you ever seen a Cloud Goblin? Like most goblins, they have huge feet, stubby legs and a large crooked nose. The majority of Cloud Goblins have white, black and rainbow coloured hair. However, some have hair the colour of bright lightning. Additionally, most Cloud Goblins have enormous bush beards (often with raindrops hanging from them) and huge ears, which can detect a small sound over 20 miles away. Cloud Goblins like to wear luminous yellow raincoats and jet-black sunglasses as it makes them feel unique.

Habitat

Cloud Goblins live in the skies all over the world. Cloud Goblins show a fondness towards living in large rain clouds where they are camouflaged. Many Cloud Goblins can be found dwelling in the clouds above mountain ranges such as the Andes or the Alps.

Diet

Cloud Goblins eat marshmallows, candy floss and lightning-bolt biscuits. They also love to drink frost or fog milkshakes but they must never drink rainwater because they are allergic to it.

Surprising Features

Cloud Goblins have many surprising features such as their elegant singing voice and gargantuan tongue. Despite their short legs, they are remarkably good at jumping, which means they are often found jumping long distance from one cloud to another. Interestingly, Cloud Goblins are quite heavy and they enjoy playing snow-flake frisbee.

Hobbies

Cloud Goblins love to make shapes out of clouds. Have you ever looked at a cloud and thought; 'That looks like a dog, a flower or a face?' If you have, then it is probably a Cloud Goblin that has created it. Finally, the most amazing thing about Cloud Goblins is that they never sleep and they really enjoy reading Star Goblins Enchanting stories.
