

Bradley Wiggins, the talented British cyclist, was pedalling through the beautiful, picturesque rolling hills of the French countryside. He was getting prepared for the Tour de France ; it was due to start the following week. With the sun shining brightly , Bradley started singing to himself. It was a glorious time to be on a bike.